

graffiti

APRIL 15-MAY 31, 2005

Comments about Graffiti?

Please contact Kelley Bachli at kelley.bachli@libraries.claremont.edu

FROM THE ARCHIVES:

Student hijinx at Harvey Mudd College: these HMC seniors found a unique way to celebrate their final year.

1966 Spectrum, the HMC yearbook.

A CLAREMONT COLLEGES LIBRARY IN THE MIDWEST

One of the Claremont Colleges Libraries' greatest resources for primary documents is not located anywhere near Claremont, but lies almost 1800 miles away, in Chicago, the Center For Research Libraries (CRL). CRL is a library cooperative that houses materials held by few other libraries in North America. Such resources as older and current foreign newspapers, dissertations from foreign universities, government documents from around the world, rarer journals and magazines, and microform sets focusing on everything from missionaries to labor organizations in South Africa during apartheid are available to students, faculty, and staff by virtue of the Libraries' CRL membership. There are two major ways of exploring CRL's holdings – by clicking on the Center for Research Libraries button after you've done a search in Blais or by visiting the CRL website at www.crl.edu. There you can find the CRL catalog as well as topic guides and databases designed to locate specific types of items among holdings such as foreign and ethnic newspapers. CRL materials can be requested through the Libraries' Interlibrary Loan. CRL also offers a growing number of digital collections, available from their website.

— Adam Rosenkranz, Reference Librarian/Bibliographer

CLAREMONT DISCOURSE LECTURE SERIESBecoming Paul M. Churchland (1942-): NeuroPhilosopher

Brian Keeley, Assistant Professor of Philosophy, Pitzer College

Philosopher Paul Churchland, currently nearing the end of his second decade in residence at the University of California, San Diego, has long been what is generally quite rare: a cutting-edge academic philosopher. Professor Keeley will show how Churchland's "new" and "radical" ideas grew quite naturally out of the more traditional philosophers who influenced him.

Wednesday, April 27th, 4:15 p.m., H/M Library, Founders Room

CURRENT EXHIBITS AT THE LIBRARIES

The M.S. Slocum Award for Student Libraries
Denison Library, April 7-May 15

From left to right:
Lisa Jacobs, Jane Repass, Maura Carter, Jess McElfresh, Laura Connor, T-Kay Sangwand, Kaitlin Brovsky, Kate Williamson, Misha Kalan, Sarah Einowski, Bonnie Brayton

Features individual book collections of 11 Scripps seniors ranging in interests from pirates to politics and "Gone with the Wind" to women's and gender studies.

Playwright of American Life: Arthur Miller, 1915-2005
Honnold/Mudd Library, 2nd floor, through May 27, 2005

In February 2005, America's preeminent playwright, Arthur Miller, died. In his honor, this exhibition showcases his award-winning and still controversial writing, including the first published editions of The Crucible, Death of a Salesman, an artist's book collaboration with Louise Bourgeois, The Homely Girl, and his candid memoir, Timebends. All items on view are from the special collections of the Libraries of The Claremont Colleges.

EVENTSLATE NIGHT STUDY BREAKS ARE BACK!

Are you tired of studying? Will FREE PIZZA and COFFEE re-energize you? Join us for our annual Late Night Study Breaks in Honnold/Mudd Library.

COFFEE and yummy GOODIES

May 1–May 7 from 9-11pm
Founders Room

PIZZA and Soft Drinks

May 8–May 9 at 10pm, and will be first come first served...so don't miss out!
Under the bridge, H/M Entrance

SPRING CRAFT FAIRE

Shop for a variety of crafts, including jewelry, apparel, ceramics, and delectable food. Sponsored by the Libraries' Staff Association.

April 28, 10am-2pm
Honnold/Mudd Library, North Patio